What is an OpenHIE Partner?

An OpenHIE Partner is an organization actively participating in the Open HIE Community and has a demonstrated interest in driving the OpenHIE mission, vision, and values. Partners actively invest their time into helping the OpenHIE Community sustainably achieve its goals in solidarity with our focus populations. For example, organizations in the community may take on roles around capacity strengthening, standards development, implementation support, software application support, etc. In return, the community serves as a milieu that advances Partners knowledge/experience, collaboration opportunities, and reputation within the global health informatics community.

Why does OpenHIE have a Partner program?

To empower a consortium of organizations to advance OpenHIE's core mission within a rapidly growing community of practice. By becoming a Partner, any organization can contribute to the digital transformation of health systems as part of a community mission that hopefully aligns with the mission of your organization.

What are the benefits of serving as a Partner?

Those organizations that are successful participants within the community describe many benefits of participation:

Influence

- Opportunity to identify new collaborators within the community and through partner connections achieve global impact in digital health and use of health data to achieve country health goals.
- Help advance the direction of the OpenHIE community by helping iterate the OpenHIE community strategic plan.
- Influence specific reference technology considerations and help address issues within the OpenHIE Architecture, through commitment to OpenHIE Architecture Principles

Exposure

- Your organization can directly contribute to the OpenHIE mission by helping support the community and its members.
- Learn about and support emerging country /stakeholder HIE initiatives through participation
- Identify and team up with other Partners (where appropriate) on business development and implementation opportunities

Promotion

Become an OpenHIE Partner Organization (OPO)

You will:

... serve as exemplars of OpenHIE's mission, vision and values

... share or encourage sharing of country implementation activities

... serve as community ambassadors through the digital health ecosystem and encourage a broader representation in OpenHIE processes

... assist in developing materials for the OpenHIE Academy, OpenHIE scenarios and workflows to be shared

... assist secretariat and committees in prioritizing activities within the larger OpenHIE community roadmap

... assist in the success of virtual and in person community (subcommunity and working group) events
