OpenHIE Community Support Needs

OpenHIE is a rapidly growing community of practice whose collective mission is to improve health outcomes through supporting an environment's ability to efficiently share and use health information across an enterprise. While the community has produced a considerable amount of public goods through volunteer and in-kind support to the community, there is a growing list of requested products and services that would be of high strategic value to the many underserved environments throughout the world who rely upon OpenHIE for support. What follows is a "wish list" of activities that the community is seeking in-kind or financial support to develop:

Artifacts for Translation

If you are interested in supporting any of these emerging activities, please post to https://discourse.ohie.org/c/community-development. Thanks!